NEW ENGLAND CROWN GLASS.—The New England Crown Glass Company have recently erected a new furnace and are manufacturing an excellent article. Their Crown Glass is thick, pure and of excellent color. Its thickness gives it an advantage over all thin glass, which is liable to crack from contraction in cold weather. Its surface not being polished after being blown, retains its enamel, brilliancy and kardness, and is not liable to the objection which applies ed on Monday the 15th inst. to Plate Glass, of being easily and permanently bedimmed by

The New England Crown Glass being purer in color than any other Glass, is preferable for Stores, as it does not tinge the rays of light as they pass through it, and therefore white goods particularly appear to advantage; and it is peculiarly useful for Factories, as some minutes of light may be gained morning and evening, in consequence of the absence of color in this glass. The price of second quality is reduced from the rates heretofore asked.

Those who wish to contract for this Glass are requested to specify New England Crown Glass. As much imposition has been practised by dealers in Glass, by deceptive marks on bores and other artifaces, any analyses who may apprehend the subscriber for any information he may wish to enable him to detect the deception. Orders sent to the undersigned, at Boston or East Cambridge, or to any at the Company's Selling Agents, will be promptly attended to. Persons wishing the appointment of Selling Agent, can apply to the subscriber by letter or otherwise. to the subscriber by letter or otherwise.

It is said that old beds that have been thoroughly dressed in the above named machine, are better than new that have not been dressed. Rights to use the Machine in the counties of Suffolk, Norfolk, Middlesex and Essex, are for sale by the subscriber.

Boston, May 2, 1836.

About six months since I examined Mr Smith's Machine for purifying feathers, and being satisfied that it must produce the effect for which it was intended, I sent a bed to be purifi-ed, which had been dried and aired in the ordinary way, by an upholsterer, four times in four successive years, without any lasting effect. The process of Mr Smith's machine upon this bed has proved completely effectual. The bed continues to be in perfect order, and the bulk of the feathers is permanently increased 25 per cent.

POETRY.

I MISS THEE WHEN AT MATIN PRAYER.

I miss thee when at matin prayer, Thy vacant place I see; I miss thee in the daily toil

I used to share with thee. Thy smiling lip is cold and still, Thy step is heard no more—And all is dark and dreary now, Where all was joy before.

I miss thee when the sabbath bell Calls to the hour of prayer;
I miss the voice in sweet response That used to echo there.

And when the sacred volume doth Our vesper thoughts engage, Who reads us now its heavenly truths, Who now expounds its page.

I miss thee in the vacant seat Beside the cheerful hearth; I miss thee in the circle where Thy look alone gave mirth. And when unseen the widow weeps-

The orphan pleads in vain, And pride and avarice turn aside-Oh, how I miss thee then ! I missed thee at the festive board

When Christmas friends drew near; And when the jocund glee went round, I could not hide the tear. They sung thy song of other times, With chorus mild and deep; I missed thy voice in concert there,

And stole away to weep.

ANECDOTES AND FACETIÆ. The late Sir John Stepney, many years our Minister at Berlin, left at his death five hundred pounds to his valet, to be paid when he delivered a favourite spaniel safely into the charge of an intimate friend. Care killed a cat, in this instance it killed a dog. However, necessity is the mother of invention, and the man had it stuffed, and then conveyed it to the place of its destination. He delivered it with some compunctious visitings, from which he was speedily delivered by the lady's exclaming, "What an agreeable suprise-I thought the nasty creature was alive! Oh, I will have a glass case at once; and here is the acknowledgment needful I believe for your legacy."

No one who knew him but will remember how much gaiety mingled with Admiral Sir James Lake's kindness of heart. He loved a joke as if he kept company with his childhood all his life. One day a young Fitzroy came to dine with him, his table being as open as his heart. "We are engaged to Lord Rothwell's," said the Admiral, "but we will take you with us. I suppose you have a good appetite of your own.' FOR SALE.

"Why I play a tolerable knife and ferk," replied the youth. "So much the better," returned Sir James, "for Lord Rothwell is an old man, and insists on every dish at his table being eaten—and if any one passes them by, he at once challenges the delinquent." The midshipman had no fears, he was hungry enough for anything. The ball where they dined was formidable suns, and pistols. But it was not till the third course that our hero felt any misgivings about these warlike preparations. He was seated next Lord Rothwell, and this neighbourhood aggravated the evil of his decreasing appetite. Every mouthful grew slower and more reluc-"Why I play a tolerable knife and fork," replied the appetite. Every mouthful grew slower and more reluctant ;-at length he screwed his courage to a desperate be by a bullet-it is downwright ungrateful to die of one's dinner-so I am ready to fight you." Sir James, however, now explained, that the jest originated in his fearing that the young sailor's modesty might stand in the way of his appetite. But his expression quite passed

A Beauty .- As Lady Elizabeth passed the line of persons seated and standing in thick array, there was heard an involuntary murmur of "How gloriously handsome she is!" MONDAY, MAY 16, 1836.

"Though all the winds of doctrine were let loose to play upon the earth, so Truth be in the field, we do inju-"riously, by licensing and prohibiting, to misdoubt her "strength. Let her and falsehood grapple; who ever knew ther put to the worse in a free and open encounter?"— Milton's Arcopgita.

The people of this community seem to be generally ignorant how great a number of our influential men may be found who would dispute the truth of the above sentiment, uttered by the great poet, and apostle of free principles. There are very many citizens under our own free government who are unwilling to "let Truth and False. hood grapple;" not, as it might be supposed, that they are afraid that truth would be overcome in the encounter, but that falsehood, which they have dignified with the name of truth, would lose her mask of rightcourness, and all her votaries be degraded to their proper level.

The gag system and the conservative system are closely un'ted. Hence all those politicians, whose ambition and interest induce them to support unjust politicial institutions, are likewise equally opposed to what they would term "abuses of the liberty of the press." They know that if "Truth is allowed to grapple with Falsehood in a free and open encounter," the falsity of their own assertions will be exposed, and the corrupt institutions which are supported by falsehood will tumble to the ground .-All the supporters of illiberal principles, both in religion and politics, are generally leagued together in a close bond of union. The interest of all hoodwinkers and monopolists is opposed to discussion. The former are afraid of the prevalence of truth, and the latter of justice-both of which would be promoted by the unrestrained liberty of the press. Hence every attempt to investigate the truth of certain principles is stigmatised as an attack upon truth itself, and every attempt to examine the nature of certain laws and institutions, which are favorable to monopoly, is stigmatised as an attack upon the constitution. One would suppose that the constitution was designed to prevent change of all kinds, whether for better or worse, rather than to regulate political reformations.

The people ought to be wise enough to know, that whenever a class of men are opposed to unrestrained freedom of discussion, to the unrestrained liberty of the press, they are not actuated, as they pretend, by any regard for the moral or political welfare of society, but they are afraid that some darling prejudice may be exposed to the light of reason, or some darling institution weighed in the scales of justice, from the former of which they obtain an unjust share of reputation, and from the latter an unjust share of

> A New Invention .- The reader will find advertised in another column, a newly invented " Patent Frictionless Pump," which has excited considerable attention in New York, and received the marked approbation of the scientific men of that city. It will, it is said, in every purpose to which it is applied, whether in ships, manufactories, mines, bridge-building, or common wells, deliver more than double the quantity of water that can be raised by the

The Nantucket Inquirer says that Mr Van Boren's maxim is that "money is power." Steep .- We know an individual, distinguished for health of body and for strength of mind, who naver receives more than three hours sleep-frequently, if not generally, less; sometimes none, absolutely, for two or three days, without appearing to suffer inconvenience by the abstinence. dent of the Journal of Commerce :-"Advices were this day received from the commanding General that our eveny has gone into summer quarters, and that although the Indians are not subdued, the part is at an end, at least for the season. It is the opinion of the General that 3000 regulars will be required to do any thing effective in the next campaign. The dreadful sickness which has prevailed throughout the volunteers show how utterly inefficient the militia are for any service except of July parades; they will fight bravely no doubt, and on the spur of the moment may be rendered very efficient; but when subjected to the rigors of military duty in a hot and sickly climate, they sink under their toil, and become burdensome to the regulars.

"General Scott and his officers were fired on while nottering on the St John's River, and had it not been for the timidity of the Indians, might have been killed or

The Tallahassee Floridian of the 30th April affirms positively that the Seminoles, with their chieftain Oscola, have never, as has been asserted, gone to the everglades, but have been in the hammocks between the Withlacoochee and Vacassassa Bay. Since our troops retired to quarters, they have come out of their fastnesses, and resumed possession. They are occupying the houses in Alachua, and rioting among the deserted plantations of corn. They have also planted their own corn within six miles of Fort King. Gov. Call will immediately call out the militia for the defence of the country, on his own responsibility, as it is the general belief at Tallahassee that they have been prematurely disbanded."

VERY LATE FROM TEXAS.

The New Orleans Bee publishes intelligence from Quintana, mouth of the Brassos, to the 16th April. Twelve hundred Mexicans were passing to Brassos at Fort Bend; Gen. Houston, with about the same number, was within a few miles to attack them. All were confident of the success of Houston. The Bee says the fate of Fanning's men is confirmed.

The Journal of Commerce has the following extract of letter from an officer of the U. S. army,

"Fort Jessup, April 15, 1836. "The accounts from Texas are truly distressing.-Col. Fanning's command, there is no doubt, has been entirely destroyed by the Mexican army. A report reached Nacogdoches that the Indians and Mexicans were in large force to the north of that city, and ready to fall upon the defenceless inhabitants. In consequence these people have fled to the Sabine River (at Gaines' ferry) in crowds. The river is very high, and great difficulty is experienced in crossing them over. The road between this place and the Sabine, has been crowded with families fleeing from the savage Mexicans and less savage Indians. General Gaines left here to-day, with 14 companies, for the purpose, I suppose, of preventing the incursion of Mexican forces on our side of the Sabine river."

The Louisiana Advertiser publishes a certificate sworn to by three men, who claim to have belonged to Col. Fanning's command. They state that the Georgia battalion were taken prisoners a day or two previous, and shot at the same time with their comrades -that Col. Fanning and about 25 of his men who were wounded, were left in the fort to take care of the wounded Mexicans, and not marched out with those who were killed. If this is true, Col. F.'s fate is yet involved in mystery.

Daring Robbery and Housebreaking .- Three houses in Beacon street were broken open last (Friday) night, viz:—Mrs E. Walcott, No 22, W. H. Ward, 20, and Mrs Francis Rollins, 18, Beacon street. The house of Mrs Walcott was entered from the back gate, leading to the avenue near the head of Park street; after opening the gate, the burglary was committed by means of der placed against a window leading to the china closet in the first story, the valuable articles in the closet appeared to have escaped the attention of the robbers; one of the drawers of a table, containing silver plate to the value of $150, was broken open, and found this morning near the gate rifled of its contents; the back yard of Mr Ward's iouse, adjoining, was gained by scaling some outer buildngs—and also the house of Mrs Rollins; but the robbers were not in both houses so successful in finding booty, and nothing of value was taken. The ladder was discovered his morning against one of the back buildings. The footsteps of the rogue or rogues were traced as far as the feace of the Park street burying ground. We wish to call the attention of the public generally to the valuable improvement lately made in pumps by Mr. Whitfeld, of 106 William street, New York, whose Parent Frictionless Pumps" have been exhibited in operation for several days past. This is a very important invention, and it is the opinion of all the engineers in New York, as well as scientific men, that these pumps will supersede the use of every other pump, and for all purposes. They are well worthy the attention of ship owners, corporations, insurance companies, manufacturers, distillers, miners, bridge builders, as well as pump makers, and all persons to whom a good pump and a -aving of expense and labor are of any importance. It is the intention of the patentee to dispose of exclusive rights for the different States—or he will dispose of the whole patent right.

MEMORANDA.—We, the undersigned, having practically examined the action of Mr Whitfield's Patent Frictionless Pump, for the purpose of critically approving its powers as a hydraulic machine, to raise water without leakage or friction, there being only the weight of the fluid to lift, do not he-itute to express our unqualified approbation of the invention in all its parts, and we are of opinion that the application of the principle of the patent frictionless numers transpond the new second.
